BLOCK PROBE

Lodge Holds Up Senate Investigations
—Senators Evidently Believe Their Action Unnecessary

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The President prior to today's cabinet meeting, had an hour's conference with Paul Howland of Cleveland who was attorney for Attorney General Daugherty in the House impeachment proceedings a year ago. There are many reports that some development might be announced but no official word has been given. While the cabinet was in session a messenger arrived with a communication from Daugherty from the Department of Justice. Officials were secretive regarding its nature.

In the meantime on the Senate floor Senator Lodge curiously enough blocked consideration of the Wheeler resolution for investigation of the Department of Justice. Lodge opposed retention of Daugherty. It is apparent Republican senators are convinced developments are near which will make Senate action unnecessary.

SEND HOME COMING INVITATIONS BY AIR

Radio Broadcasting Stations In Contest for Greatest Dissemination

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 26.—Hundreds of absent Kentuckians will receive informal invitations to Kentucky's Home Coming celebration by air as the Kentucky Home Coming Association has just announced that it will conduct four radio broadcasting prize contests as a means of obtaining the greatest possible dissemination of information about the undertaking.

Five hundred dollars in prizes will be awarded, of which $450 will be divided among the managers of broadcasting stations which participate. In the first contest $175 will be divided between the three managers who obtain the names and addresses of the greatest number of absent Kentuckians while in contest No. 2 a prize of $100 will be given the manager whose announcement brings a response from the greatest distance from his station. The four Kentuckians whose replies are sent from the greatest distances will be awarded prizes of $25, $15, $10 and $5 in this contest.

In contest No. 3, $85 will be divided between the three managers who obtain the names and addresses of the greatest number of persons who are related by blood to General George Rogers Clark and the same amount of money will be divided in contest No. 4 between the same number of managers who obtain the greatest number of names and addresses of persons related by blood to Daniel Boone.

Winners in the first two contests will be announced April 14 and in the remaining contests on April 28. The judges will be Governor William Mason, Mayor Huston Quinn and Judge Robert Worth Bingham. Announcement of the contest will be sent out over WHAS, the radio of Louisville, and The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times.

AMEND COAL TAX TO ONE PER CENT

Majority Report Unfavorable to Tax Bill—Minority Would Amend

By Associated Press.
FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 26.—Representative Nelson today announced he and Representative Thornberry had signed the minority report on Representative Vaughn's coal tax bill with an amendment setting the production sale tax rate one per cent, instead of two and a half per cent, provided in the bill, majority unfavorable report was in prospect at that time.

Jack Himself

Jack Dempsey called at the White House and discussed affairs of the nation with the president. Dempsey wanted to know why Czechoslovakia was not given mandate over Abyssinia, it is rumored. Coolidge assured Dempsey, however, that the only thing that stood in the way was article X of the League of Nations, and the two thereupon discussed the league in detail.

CITY PRISONERS NOW TO HAVE ADVANTAGE OF RADIO CONCERTS

Prisoners at the city hall may now hear radio concerts during the long evenings, an entertainment that will do much to relieve the monotony of the confinement. Though not installed for their express benefit, the set which R. M. Knipp, jailer, has placed in his living quarters at the city hall is equipped with an amplifier which makes it possible to hear the speaking and music all over the building. Prisoners can get the latest news of the day, hear sermons, speeches and concerts from all parts of the country and when they are tired of these they can tuck themselves in bed as they listen to the soothing tunes of the children's bed-time stories.

OLD-FASHIONED FUNERAL FOR REV. OWSLEY TODAY

Funeral services for the Rev. Owsley who died Sunday morning were conducted at the M. E. Church South from 1:30 to 2:30 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. W. K. McClure and the Rev. Sam P. Martin. The services were conducted along plain and old-fashioned lines in accordance with wishes previously expressed by the Rev. Owsley. The choir, composed of singers from the M. E. Church South, the Baptist and Christian churches, sang old-fashioned hymns. The ministers each read short passages of Scripture and made brief but impressive talks. A large crowd was present and there was a large and beautiful floral display. A brief service was conducted at the Hurst cemetery where interment took place at 3 o'clock. All business houses were closed from 1:30 to 2:30 out of respect for Mr. Owsley.

ARREST 4 SATURDAY NIGHT FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

Four arrests for alleged liquor law violations were made here Saturday night and three of the defendants were convicted in police court Monday morning and each fined $100 and costs, given jail sentences of 30 days and will be required to make $100 peace bonds.

Clayton Nuby and W. K. Bush were arrested at the home of the former near Fern lake with six "little boys" in their possession, according to officers. Giles Carroll was arrested near Stony Fork with about a gallon of liquor. The whiskey was poured out at the city hall after the trial. Another man named Carroll whose trial has been continued is charged with having liquor.

HEARING TODAY

Eye Witnesses Testify to Jonesville
Grand Jury Regarding Slaying
—Give Report This Evening

D. C. Sellers, Millard Overton, Lesh Bishop and R. S. Saylor, held in connection with the shooting affray on the Virginia road Saturday afternoon were removed to Lexington this morning.

The men were removed from the Middlesboro jail to the county jail at Pineville last night upon a writ of habeas corpus obtained from the circuit judge. It is understood that the emergency writ was issued at the instigation of Sam Collins, State dry enforcement officer, who had been informed by county officials at Pineville that the removal of the prisoners was necessary.

The four prisoners were kept at Pineville last night and went to Lexington this morning in the custody of Joe Howard, deputy jailer. Eight or ten eye witnesses to the shooting testified before the grand jury at the hearing in Jonesville today. All of the evidence had been given in by 2 o'clock this afternoon and the case was pending. A report was promised late in the afternoon.

Associated Press.
RALEIGH, Feb. 26.—The first definite move looking to nomination of Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, as a democratic presidential candidate, was taken here last night by prominent men, who called a meeting for Thursday night to organize a "Daniels for President Club." Signers include State Treasurer Lacy, Chief Justice Clark and prominent business and professional men of the state.

M. H. S. SCRUBS LOSE TO EWING

Virginia Boys Keep Lead From the Fids—Gibson Star of the Home Team

The high school Scrubs lost to Ewing high school last night, 29 to 21. Ewing took the lead at the beginning of the game and held it throughout. The local boys made a good showing, though, and fought hard.

Ewing was very lucky with her shots shooting several from near the middle of the floor. Fulkerson and Harrison were the outstanding players for Ewing, while Gibson was the outstanding player for the local team. The line-up follows:

Middlesboro
Willis G. (11) Fulkerson
Neighbors G. (18) Harrison
Clemens C. Fugate
Gibson (16) F. Blessing
Brown (6) F. Willis
Substitutes: Middlesboro, Tate,
Yancy, Dean, Lawson; (2) Ewing, Stickney.

GIRL SCOUT PROGRAM AT MARRING THEATRE TONIGHT

A full program is promised at the Girl Scout entertainment to be given tonight at the Marring theatre. The program consists of a motion picture comedy, a patriotic pageant prepared by the scouts and the regular picture, "Mother-in-Law."

The pageant will be the particular feature. The girls of Red Rose Troop have been working on it for several weeks, with Mrs. W. C. Starr directing and Mrs. D. W. Senter at the piano. Fancy dancing and pretty costumes will be featured, as well as musical songs and interesting characterizations.

OWEN J. ROBERTS IS EXPERIENCED BIG GAME STALKER IN MAINE OR CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Stalking big game is the favorite sport of Owen J. Roberts.

He spends a month of each year up in the Maine woods stalking bear and moose.

Now he is stalking big game in Washington. Roberts and Alice Pomerene, former senator from Ohio, have been named special prosecutors by President Coolidge in the natural oil lease cases.

But it's the thrill of the chase, rather than the zest of the kill, in which Roberts finds his greatest pleasure. He may stalk a moose all day working his way up the hills through the forests, only to refuse to shoot when he has his quarry cornered.

Six Feet of Energy
Whether this analogy will follow in the chase of the big game Roberts now has been set to stalk, remains to be seen.

However, in this case, he may regard the quarry as a bear. And while Roberts often passes up the moose, he usually lands the bear.

A powerful-built, muscular man of over six feet, Roberts conveys an impression of limitless energy and driving force.

Strong features, widely spaced eyes, wide mouth, the long nose of an inquisitor and a bit of bulldog about the square lines of his jaw. Hair a trifle gray about the temples. A brisk, alert manner and an aura of physical vigor and mental keenness.

Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, who recommended Roberts to President Coolidge, describes Roberts as "a fighting Welshman." Although of Welsh descent, Roberts was born in Germantown, a suburb of Philadelphia 45 years ago. His father, Josephus Roberts, now 88, still lives in the house where "Owen" as he calls his son, was born.

When the Roberts education had progressed to the point where a decision as to his life's work was desirable his father suggested law. Owen demurred.

Honesty Put First
"Lawyers aren't honest," he declared. "I want to teach school."

The matter was finally put to Dr. William Kershaw, headmaster of the Germantown Academy.

"Can I be a lawyer and honest?" Owen asked.

"My boy," Kershaw replied, "you can be honest at anything."

So the die was cast for law. He received his degree in law from Pennsylvania University, where Senator Pepper was one of his instructors. After graduation he was for a time an instructor in the law school, following his original bent to be a teacher. Soon, however, he gave up this to enter the practice of law.

Beginning as an assistant district attorney in Philadelphia, he built up a civil practice which for the past 10 years has kept him in court, as a trial lawyer, almost continuously. To handle the necessary preparation and office work in his practice has required working full-time from 12 to 16 hours a day.

Cornetist, Too
Roberts doesn't play golf. He doesn't drive a speedy roadster. He doesn't dance. For 11 months of each year his law practice is his life, and he gives himself to it without reserve.

The other month he specifically set aside for building up his physical resources in the Maine woods—camping, hunting, fishing, trapping, endless miles.

Roberts is married and has one daughter, a debutante of this season. His one avocation has been as a cornetist, which instrument he used to play in the Third Baptist church. Later, however, he joined the Episcopal church and gave up tooting even his own horn.

"Roberts," his acquaintances here maintain, "will get down to brass tacks in this investigation."

It is an earnest, careful, energetic, tireless, relentless, effective. He will supplement Senator Pomerene's qualifications, making a good working team that ought to produce the maximum results for their clients—the American people.

GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER DIES AT HIS HOME TODAY

Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—George Randolph Chester, 55, author and playwright, died at his home here today.

"Get Rich Quick," Wallingford and "Blackie Daw" are two of his most famous fictional characters. Early today, Chester, who had complained of pains in the chest early in the night, sat up in bed, spoke to his wife and fell over dead of heart disease.

TWO LEAGUE GAMES TONIGHT

Baptists Meet Presbyterians, Local Methodists Play Brothers of Pineville

Two good games are scheduled for the Interchurch Basketball League tonight. The Baptists meet the Presbyterians in the first game and the Middlesboro Methodists play the Pineville Methodists in the second.

The first two teams are well-matched, too, and though neither has won a game they are both hard fighters. The outcome of that game should decide the cellar championship. A large crowd is urged to attend and give their encouragement to their respective team. Interest in the games has been lagging and it is understood these interesting matches may be continued unless the crowds are better.

Radio sets and accessories have been installed by the Middlesboro Motor company, according to Rudolph Wells, manager. He says that he has had the agency less than a week and has sold five complete sets.

Local Citizens Get Lesson In Thrift From Ground Mouse

Frequently man gets so obsessed with the things he has done by artificial means, so boastful of accomplishments wrought by his superior mind and skill, that he needs a lesson from nature to put him right. For if he will but look he can find that none of the wonders which he glorifies in ever excels, in any way, the wonders of nature.

Today a number of Middlesboro citizens had a lesson from so lowly a creature as the ground mouse. George Turner of Neotown was here selling for a dollar a gallon chestnut log on Canada Mountain. Inside the log he found a ground mouse with three gallons of chestnuts, the thrifty animal's garner to keep him through the winter.

The chestnuts had been taken through a small hole in the log, so small that entrance must have been difficult as many of the chestnuts are chipped off on the side, evidently to get them in the more easily. The wet weather has swollen the wood and the hole has diminished now so that another mouse could not possibly get in. All of the chestnuts were fresh, not dry and hard like those kept by humans into the winter. And, most interesting of all, every one of the nuts are sound with no sign of worminess.

Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Suddenly interrupting hearings, the Senate on Committee closed doors today and spent two hours scanning a sheaf of telegrams sent from Washington A. B. Fall and E. B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, when they were in Florida. Results of the examination were not disclosed, but some committee members hinted that the files produced some highly interesting information. Telegrams were brought by managers of local telegraph companies on the committee subpoena. It was announced, however, that such of the messages deemed pertinent to inquiry would be put into the record tomorrow.

COOLIDGE OPPOSES APPROPRIATIONS

Says Enactment Would Menace Property of Country for Long Time

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Numerous bills pending in Congress making large appropriations are regarded by President Coolidge as disturbing to the property and welfare of the country. In his opinion, their enactment would create a situation from which the country will be long in recovering. A survey has convinced the President that enactment would call for appropriations larger than the entire expenditures of the government, outside the post office department, before the war.

TO PRESENT FLAG BY 15 FEET TO SCHOOL MARCH 9

The Jr. O. U. A. M. has received an American flag, nine by 15 feet, which will be presented to the Central school and raised on the lawn there March 9. A pole sixty-five feet high having a gold ball at the top is being furnished by the school. Presentation exercises will be held at the school at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of March 9. The presentation speech will be made by J. D. Feathers of Corbin. Speech of acceptance will be delivered by Supt. J. W. Brainerd. All councils of the Junior order in this section have been invited to attend the exercises and a large crowd is expected.

NOON MAIL TO PINEVILLE NOW SHOULD BE BIG ADVANTAGE

Local patrons seem to be slow in realizing the advantages of the special mail pouch for Pineville which leaves here on the 12:35 p. m. train daily and which makes it possible for mail to be delivered in Pineville within a few hours after it has left here. The service has been in effect several days though few patrons have taken advantage of it. Mail received at the Middlesboro postoffice as late as 11:45 a. m. will be placed in the special pouch and leave for Pineville on the 12:35 train.

PRISON MATRON FOUND SLAIN

Hidden Flame

I feel a flame within, which so torments me,
That both pains my heart, and yet
I cannot see;
This such a pleasing smart, and I so love it,
That I had rather die than once remove it.

Yet he, whom I grieve, shall never know it;
My tongue does not betray, nor my eyes show it,
Not a sigh, nor a tear, my pain
discloses,
But they fall silently, like dew on roses.

Thus, to prevent my Love from being cruel,
My heart's the sacrifice, as 'tis
the fuel;
And while I suffer this to give his quiet,
My faith rewards my love, though he deny it.

On his eyes will I gaze, and there delight me;

While I conceal my love no frown
can fright me
To be more happy I dare not aspire,
Nor can I fall more low, mounting no higher.

Three large unsweetened stewed prunes, 1 thin slice broiled bacon, 1 ounce lean roast beef, 1 steamed parsnip, 4 tablespoons apple celery-onion-cottage cheese salad, 1-2 head lettuce, 2 thin slices crisp gluten toast, 1 pint skimmed milk, baked prune pudding.

Total calories, 1225. Protein, 304; fat, 494; carbohydrate, 427. Iron, .0204 gram.

Baked Prune Pudding

Four tablespoons chopped prunes, 3-4 cup gluten flour, 1-1 cup molasses, 1-2 cup sour milk, 1-2 teaspoon soda, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, dash cloves, dash nutmeg.

The pureness of the gluten flour will have much to do with the number of carbohydrate calories.

Dissolve soda in sour milk, add molasses. Mix spices and flour and add to liquid ingredients. Mix well and add prunes. Turn into a buttered mold or small pan and bake 40 minutes in a slow oven. Serve with skimmed milk while warm. This rule makes two servings. Steam to reheat.

Gain Weight

Six large sweetened stewed prunes,

2 slices broiled bacon, 4 cornmeal pancakes, 1 cup split pea soup, 4 ounces roast beef, 2 tablespoons gravy, 1 potato baked with meat, steamed parsnip, 4 tablespoons combination salad, 1-2 head lettuce, 4 tablespoons maple sirup, 3 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons apple tapioca pudding, 4 tablespoons cream, 1 egg-nog, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 graham crackers, 2 Parker House rolls, 6 croutons, 1 pint whole milk.

Total calories, 3645. Protein, 460; fat, 1398; carbohydrate, 1787. Iron, .0182 gram.

Combination Salad (Individual)

Two tablespoons chopped apple, 1 tablespoon chopped celery, 1-2 teaspoon minced onion, 2 tablespoons cottage cheese, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 teaspoon currant jelly, 1 tablespoon oil, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1-2 teaspoon sugar, salt, and paprika.

Combine apple, celery and onion, then add sugar, lemon juice and oil, cover and let stand in a cold place for an hour. Moisten cheese with cream and add first mixture. Stir on a bed of lettuce. Top with jelly with a fork to combine and arrange and put mayonnaise in a lettuce leaf.

Total calories, 277. Protein, 27; fat, 194; carbohydrate, 56. Iron, .003 gram.

Lose Weight

Juice 1 lemon in 2 cups hot water, 2 poached eggs, 4 ounces broiled halibut steak, 1-2 cup canned string beans, 4 tablespoons ten-minute cabbage, asparagus salad (12 stalks), cucumber salad, jellyed prunes (2 tablespoons), 4 thin slices crisp gluten toast, 2 gluten rolls, 1 pint skimmed milk, 1 large tablespoon whipped cream, 1-2 head lettuce.

Total calories, 937. Protein, 300; fat, 297; carbohydrate, 331. Iron, .0176 gram.

Ten-Minute Cabbage

One head (about 2 pounds) cabbage, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon butter, salt and pepper. Shred cabbage very fine. Plunge into a large kettle of rapidly boiling water and boil 10 minutes. Drain and season with salt and pepper, butter and lemon juice.

Total calories, 354. Protein, 54; fat, 20; carbohydrate, 280. Iron, .0084 gram.

Gain Weight

Juice 1 lemon, 2 poached eggs, 2 slices bacon, 1 cup cream of potato soup, 4 ounces lemon halibut steak, 1-2 tablespoons lemon butter, 1 large twice-baked potato, 1-2 cup canned string beans, 4 tablespoons ten-minute cabbage, asparagus salad (12 stalks), 1-2 head lettuce, cucumber salad, 4 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons whipped cream, 4 thin crisp pieces toast, 2 half-inch pieces raisin bread, 2 two-inch squares corn bread, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 pint whole milk, 1 baked apple, 4 tablespoons cream, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Total calories, 3352. Protein, 486; fat, 1784; carbohydrate, 1082. Iron, .0162 gram.

The beans should be well seasoned with butter and cream, the cabbage have an extra amount of butter and the potato rich with butter and cheese. Butter and cream are easily digested fats and most friendly to the too-thin person. Marmalade or jelly might be a welcome addition to the luncheon or breakfast and one tablespoon will add approximately 100 calories.

The Bravest Woman I Ever Met

NELLIE REVELL

NOTE—This interview with Betty Compson, noted motion picture star, was granted by Nellie Revell the day before Miss Compson left New York for Florida, where the film beauty is at work in the new Alan Crosland production, "Miami," to be distributed by Holkmann. The illustrations made by famous cartoonists and reproduced here are those appearing in RIGHT OFF THE CHEST. They are used through the courtesy of the artists and of George H. Doran Company, publishers of the book.—The Editor.

By Betty Compson

I HAD heard about The Woman Who Wouldn't Give Up. I have been uplifted and thrilled by the heroic fight for life waged by Nellie Revell for the past four years, and have marvelled at the sublime courage of one of my own sex who, with spirit that lashed through a lamentable accident but her indomitable spirit unbroken, still battles bravely on a smile and a merry quip over on her lips.

My experience in motion pictures has brought me in contact with many brave men and women, for the life of a movie actor is a hazardous one. And screen stars are often called upon to face real danger in the filming of scenes. I have seen dare-devil stunts performed before the camera by those who scoffed at death, that the public might be entertained. It was all in the day's work. But the moral and physical courage—the pure grit—manifested in the four years of intense suffering endured by Nellie Revell elevates her, in my estimation, to a niche with the heroes of all time.

It was, therefore, with a feeling something akin to awe that I entered the room at the Hotel Somerset, New York, for Nellie Revell has recently left St. Vincent's Hospital, where for an eternity, it must have seemed, this brave woman has fought the grim fight, and won! For now Nellie Revell is getting well and may be able to resume the active career she loved.

If I had expected to see a woman cynical and soured by the slatter of fate that has bedridden her, such an idea would have been dispelled by the cordial and cheery words with which she greeted me.

"I am more than glad you were

Facts About Nellie Revell
Daughter of a gallant Civil War Soldier. Widow of a Spanish War hero. The first woman press agent in the United States. Her life's savings lost in the collapse of an "unfortunate" investment. Her spine was injured four years ago, three of the vertebrae being crumpled. Since her accident she has been bedridden, bravely fighting for her life. Now the doctors say she is getting well. She has written a book—"Right Off the Chest"—published by George H. Doran Co.

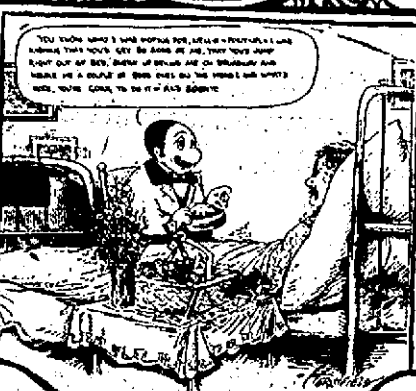

NELLIE REVELL AND IRVIN S. COBB DISCUSSING "RIGHT OFF THE CHEST"

"You know, of course, that I began my career as a press agent, and I never will lose my newspaper instinct for good copy."

I ventured the opinion that this faculty was partly explanatory of her ability to keep her from becoming self-centered in her misfortune.

"There is a lot of truth in that," was Nellie's rejoinder. "To be a press agent requires, first of all, a generous amount of imagination. And I speak from experience when I maintain that being hung up by the wrists with your chin banded to a board and your mouth packed so you won't bite your tongue out; with your knees strapped together—then have someone kick the support from under your feet so you can dangle and give the old spine a chance to get set—is a condition of human discomfort that taxes the imagination as well as the will power.

"It is rather a stuffy feeling, as Yum-Yum remarks to Koko in the 'Mikado.' You can't kick, you can't talk! Isn't that a terrible situation for a press agent to be in? All stuck up! But what's a press agent without a backbone?"

Oh, wonderful woman, who could find a jest and a pun in her own misfortune! Into my mind flashed the remembrance of some recent occurrences which had, at the time, got on my nerves, and I felt ashamed. I confessed as much, but Nellie smilingly found a reason and excuse in her quaint philosophy.

"After all, it's only human na-optimism from one who had really lived and suffered.

For Nellie Revell has seen life. Descended from a family of artists and show people on her mother's side, her father a well known newspaper writer, for thirty years she did her work in the writing and theatrical field, and did it well.

Irvin Cobb, fellow reporter with her on the New York World in the old days, said: "Nellie and I are the only two reporters left in the United States. All the rest who write for newspapers are journalists."

And now, as I sat opposite Nellie Revell, I recalled Irvin Cobb's tribute to her in his foreword to her book "Right Off the Chest."

"If you, who read this book, are a stranger to its author, I am sure that long before you lay it down you will have in your mind a correct picture of her individuality. And those who know her—and only God himself knows how many of these there are—here must behold her as she is—blithe, brave, witty, wholesome, kindly, sweet-savored, indomitable, a soul like a white flame, a spirit like a tempered sword. . . . I said she was brave. I'll go further than that. . . . To the best of my observation, remembrance and belief, Nellie Revell is the bravest living creature I ever saw in my life."

And as the glowing words of Cobb's tribute ran through my mind, I thought of the book Nellie Revell has written while confined to her bed, "Right Off the Chest!" What an apt title! Literally and figuratively, right off the chest! None but a "soul like a white flame, a spirit like a tempered sword" could have so effectively rebuffed Fate's sinister jest!

Effervescing with real wit and humor, and scintillating with pungent epigrams and quaint philosophy, "Right Off the Chest" has given me many delightful moments. I tried to express to Nellie something of the pleasure and profit her book had afforded me.

"I am glad you like it," she said simply. "But do you know, I positively enjoyed letting myself 'go' in that book, and not the least of my satisfaction was due to the fact that I soaked old man Duntley for a sock of new verities just when he was about to make 'out,' and made the old chap like it."

And there you have the keynote of Nellie Revell's character. Optimism and the "never say die" spirit.

And when I left Nellie Revell I felt that the "soul like a white flame" and "spirit like a tempered sword" had touched my own spirit, and nevermore would I, in my life, be the petty misanthrope that I was.

BOY SAYS HE KILLED 4 TO EXPIATE SIN THROUGH FIRE-BLOOD-WATER

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 26.—Pating up and down a prison cell here Frank McDowell, 20, is worried.

Not because his sisters were burned to death, and he is accused of their murder.

Not because his father and mother were shot to death as they slept, and he is charged with the crime.

But because the law may keep him from completing a trilogy of crime which he believes must be committed before he can absolve himself from a curse!

Georgia authorities want him extradited and put on trial for the murder of his sisters, which occurred a year ago. The sentence for murder there is death by hanging. Florida officials want him tried for the death of his parents. If guilty, death by electrocution is the penalty.

But it is popularly believed that the boy will face a lunacy commission and be assigned to the state sanitarium for the criminally insane.

In any event, when Feb. 19, 1925—the date set for the last of his trilogy of crime—rolls around, young McDowell will not be able to keep it.

The curse, for the removal of which the boy says he planned these crimes, grew out of some childish swearing.

"I blasphemed the Holy Ghost when I was 12 years old," McDowell told the police. "I couldn't put on a shirt I wanted to wear. Some of its buttons were missing. So I cursed."

At a church service later he heard a clergyman say that such swearing was an "unpardonable crime." The thought preyed on the boy's mind until it became an obsession. He finally figured out a way of expiating this "sin" by a series of sacrifices to be made by—

Fire...Blood...Water.

Last year, in February, his two sisters, Marion and Willmatree, met a horrible death. They were living near Atlanta, Ga., at the time. Their room had been locked, their bed saturated with gasoline, and a match applied. The whole place was a mass of seething flames before the fire was discovered. Only their charred bones remained when it was all over.

An investigation was started, but dropped at the request of the parents.

Fire...Blood...Water.

The trilogy kept on rumpling through the boy's mind.

Just a year later his parents were found murdered in their home at Clearwater. They lay in a pool of blood, shot at close range.

Fire...Blood...Water.

The boy was arrested. At first he denied any knowledge of the crime. Then, according to the police, he admitted killing them, and also burning his sisters to death.

He said that was going to kill someone by drowning a year hence. At first he said it was going to be his sweetheart, but later said that he would be his own victim.

But the cycle won't be completed the way he planned—

Fire...Blood...Water.

HEAVY TOURIST TRAVEL LIKELY

Williams Predicts Flood of Tourists Through Knoxville Next Fall

KNOXVILLE, Feb. 25.—Due to the untiring work of Secretary Buckner and Field Engineer O'Connor, of the Asheville Western North Carolina Motor Club, Knoxville may expect more than a hundred thousand automobile tourists to pass through the city next fall, en route to Florida, according to J. H. Williams, publisher of the Appalachian Trade Journal, who was in Knoxville last week to attend the meeting and banquet of the Southern Appalachian Coal Operators' association.

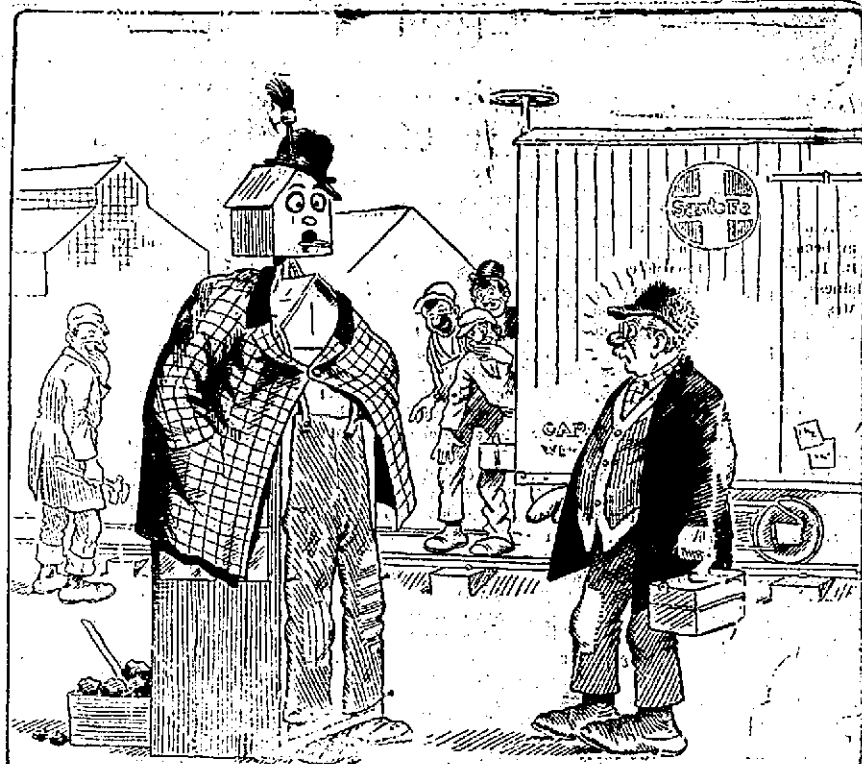

The North Carolinians have been able to convince the residents of every town in Kentucky, between Middlesboro to Covington, that impassable roads in that state are keeping the tourists away and causing other states to reap a harvest which would mean hundreds of thousands of dollars to Kentucky. Civic organizations and business men along the Dixie Highway have contributed sufficient funds to make the highway passable, while farmers have loaned their teams to the state for a day and rolled up their sleeves and helped with the actual work of improving bad stretches.

Mr. Williams pointed out that there were more than a quarter of a million cars from other states in Florida this winter and that fully 70 per cent of them came down the Atlantic coast because it was impossible to get through Kentucky and Tennessee. There were more cars from Ohio in Florida than from any other state, while Michigan ran second. All of these should have followed the Dixie highway through Kentucky and Tennessee and will do so next fall if the roads can be made passable by the time the southward rush begins, he said.

The Tennessee highway commission has agreed to improve the stretch of road in Cocke county west of the North Carolina line, so that it will be possible for the tourists to go through Asheville, if they so desire, after reach Knoxville will not be a boulevard for big Knoxville. Mr. Williams explained a few years, but a little work on it that the road between Cincinnati and will make it the best between the north and south, thereby attracting a large percentage of the tourists' travel.

MILLION DOLLARS MAY BE SPENT BY FORD ON PROJECT NEAR COAL MINE OPERATION, WALLINS CREEK

HARLAN, Ky., Feb. 26.—(Banner) Ford Motor company, two miles from Wallins Creek, and 12 miles from Harlan, which is owned by Henry Ford, is preparing to construct a modern dam for the utilization of water power in operation of the large plant and the additions are now being constructed.

The dam, when completed, so we are informed, will be 200 feet long, 100 feet high, and will cost more than a half million dollars. Along with the construction of the dam will be facilities to increase the output at the Ford mines, so our informant stated, which includes additional types and track facilities costing another half million dollars.

Drillers have been busy on the Ford property for some time tearing the mineral resources under the level and several shipments of the "cores" from the borings for laboratory investigation. It is generally believed that a large vein of coal lies under the level surface, and that the preparation for the dam means that Ford has located the vein.

The Banner Fork Coal company has played a conspicuous part in the mining history of Harlan county. Early in the war it was sold by the original incorporators at one of the largest premiums ever paid for mining stock. Later it was purchased by Henry Ford, who at once entered upon a system of mining fashioned after the way his Detroit Ford factories are conducted. During the rail strike in 1922, when all the coal from this field was tied up because of the strike in the Corbin shops, Ford offered to guarantee transportation if the L. & N. railroad would turn the C. V. division over to him during the strike. This offer, however, was refused.

There is a general improvement in mining conditions all over Harlan county, and already the scarcity of railroad cars is alleged to be a handicap to production.

This has been perhaps the hardest winter on the coal people in the history of Harlan county. For most of the time some of the largest mines in practically all the smaller mines made no attempt to operate. However, all the mines in the county are operating some on part time, it is true, but there is a general feeling of optimism all over the field that the hardest part of the hill has been reached and passed and there are brighter days for the coal industry ahead.

The United States Coal & Coke company at Lynch; the Wisconsin Steel company, at Benham; the Melcroft Coal company, at Coxton; the Black Mountain Coal Corporation, at Kenner; and the Banner Fork Coal company at Twila all use their own output and have run practically at full time during the entire winter. This has enabled the other mines to go into the open market and sell much of their product, without competition from these large operations.

Taking it all in all, the coal situation in the Harlan field, is far better than many other fields, and is as good as could be expected under the present unsettled market conditions.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 26.—A joint resolution passed by the General Assembly last week read:

"Be it resolved by the General Assembly:

"Whereas there is now pending before the Congress of the United States, assembled in Washington what is known as the national adjusted compensation bill for the World War veterans, which has been introduced by the American Legion, and whereas there appears to be some delay in the enactment of said law,

"Therefore be it resolved that the General Assembly of the commonwealth of Kentucky hereby memorializes Congress of the United States to immediately pass the said national adjusted compensation law for the veterans of the World War,

"Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to every member of Congress from the state of Kentucky."

BANDIT-PROOF PAYROLL CAR

Louisville Company Has Ingenious
Steel Auto With Doors
Like Safe

By Associated Press.
LOUISVILLE, Feb. 25.—A specially designed armored motor car for use in transporting payroll money from a downtown bank to its plant in the edge of the city has been placed in service here by the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company.

The car, it is claimed, is as nearly "bandit-proof" as mechanical ingenuity can devise. The body is constructed of heavy sheet steel, with a bullet-proof windshield, with the doors to the body proper locked and the step drawn up no place is left to furnish a hand or foothold for robbers.

A large safe, the lock of which is operated with a crank, is located in side the body. Three guards who ride inside the safe with the payroll are unable to leave until the doors are opened by a man who rides in a conveyer automobile and carries a crank. Although protected by steel walls, guards inside have access to telephones through which they would be able to direct volleys from high-power rifles and automatic pistols and shotguns at anyone attempting to interfere with the progress of the armored car.

That Old Decey!

A clergyman who occasionally substituted for a brother preacher in a remote country parish, was scandalized on observing the old deacon, who had been collecting the offering, quietly abstract a coin before presenting the plate at the altar rail.

After the service he called the old man into the vestry and told him, with some emotion, that his crime had been discovered.

The deacon looked puzzled for a moment. Then a sudden light dawned on him.

"Why, sir, you don't mean that old dollar of mine? Why, I've led off with that for the last 15 years!" People's Home Journal.

The mysterious package

THE cries: "In my hand I have an article of value. At THE auctioneer shows a package. In a raucous voice any store, anywhere, you couldn't buy it under a dollar

.... I'll tell you what I'll do: The first lady or gentleman who hands me a quarter gets this valuable package. Now who'll give me a quarter?"

If you are in a good humor, you may risk a quarter. You don't expect a quarter's worth, and you are not disappointed.

That's all very well once in a while. But you don't want to buy household goods, food, clothes, in this blind fashion. You'd laugh at the idea of your accepting a wrapped package and paying good money for it when it came to every-day necessities.

Yet you do. For example, when you buy some well-known breakfast foods. Of course, you have a general idea what is in it. But you don't investigate the quality. You don't break open the package to see the contents.

That is what advertising does for you. It protects you against inferior products. You know that an advertiser must keep faith with the promise in his advertisement. That is why it pays you to read the advertisements. When you buy a wrapped package of advertised goods, you are not buying blindly.

SHOT ON THE OPENING NIGHT

"Cabinet Women Not My Kind," Says Mrs. Johnson. "The Farm For Me"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The Minnesota Johnsons' hot(1) water pipes were frozen.

The Johnsons had been out all afternoon—the senator at the capitol, Mrs. Johnson visiting the suburban school her children attend. In their absence the pipes went out.

The senator was considerably heated by the mishap, but the house was not. Mrs. Johnson took it philosophically, as one of the inevitable discomforts of city life. "Modern conveniences!" she said scornfully.

Warm At 30 Below

"On the farm," she added "we never had such troubles. We burn wood there—in a stove. I never used coal before."

"This climate isn't so bad, but we can't keep warm. In Minnesota we could, with a wood fire, in 20- and 30-degree-below-zero weather."

Senator Johnson answered the door in person. He looked rather doubtful at the request for an interview with his wife.

"Mrs. Johnson isn't a politician," he said. "She's been on the school board, but she's a farm woman. She doesn't understand politics. And the newspapers have said some things about us that were all wrong."

"Now, that's a little contest! You know, the one with Secretary Wallace. One of the worst mistakes I ever saw got into that. The papers said those cows were Jerseys. They were not. The senator's voice rose in anger. "They were Holsteins."

"There's considerable difference between a Jersey and a Holstein," supplemented Mrs. Johnson.

Senator Johnson is hard to interview. He has so much to say it's difficult to get a question in edgewise. Mrs. Johnson is harder. She answers just "yes" and "no."

"You like Washington, Mrs. Johnson?"

"What, in comparison with a farm? It's lonely."

"She Does the Washing."

"You're no time to be lonely on a farm. Too much work to do."

"But you find it interesting here?"

"In some ways. I have my housework to interest me. I do it all, you know. And the washing. I do that, too, just as I did in Minnesota."

"I shall go back to Minnesota soon."

Mrs. Johnson added positively. "I want to be there. In the spring the farm will need me. In the winter it doesn't matter much. I'll go back in April."

"Of course there's plenty of official society?"

"Oh, yes, I've had lots of calls—the cabinet ladies, everybody. But they are not my kind of people."

"Mr. Johnson's engagements keep him away a great deal too—days and evenings."

"Yes, it's lonely."

"You're not interested in women's political activities?"

"I've never had time to be. I've always been too busy on the farm. We've never kept any help, you see—on the farm or here, either."

"Good help's hard to get now." This just to get Mrs. Johnson to say something.

"I don't know. I've never tried."

"Not like the days when $1 a week was the standard price for a maid-of-all-work." Still struggling to make conversation.

"I only got $2.50 when I worked out," said Mrs. Johnson.

SEEDS

You Plant Your Garden With Faith-- Faith In What?

If there ever was a demonstration of faith on your part, it is when you plant a garden. You have faith in the soil—faith in the weather—faith in your own efforts.

But your greatest faith of all is in the seeds you plant. You EXPECT those seeds to come up; you EXPECT the plants to produce beautiful flowers and tender, flavory vegetables which are true to name and type. And you will never be disappointed unless those seeds are of uncertain ancestry.

Plant our seeds with confidence. Plant them with faith that they will produce in abundance and quality.
